1 Only 2 Years Old... 49 Jackfruits on the Tree!

Khammam District, Konijerla: While jackfruit trees generally take many years to bear fruit, a jackfruit tree in the backyard of Dondapati Shivani, a resident of Konijerla, has surprised everyone. The sapling, brought from Kadiyam and planted two years ago, is now bearing as many as 49 jackfruits. Even after removing a few fruits during the initial growth stage, the tree still has an extraordinary number of jackfruits. The high yield at such a young age has attracted many locals to visit the tree. Shivani and her family expressed their joy. Locals are jokingly calling it a "jackfruit jackpot" in their backyard.

2 Cows and Buffaloes Develop Large Skin Lumps and Sores!

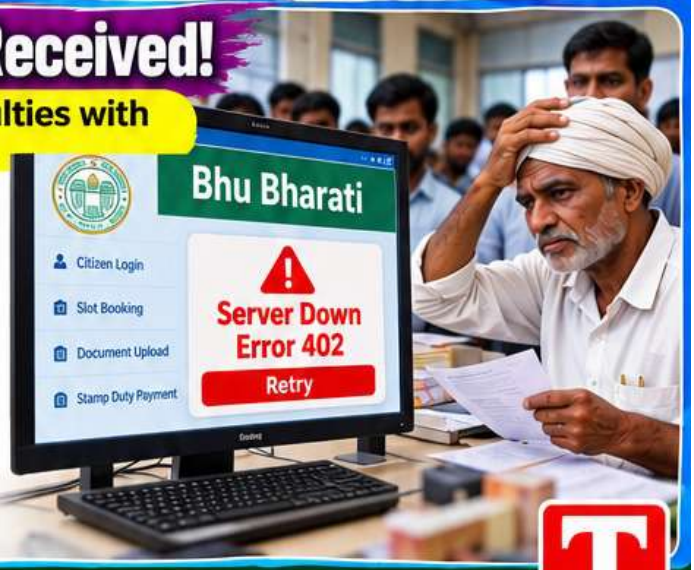

Suspected Lumpy Skin Disease (LSD)

Khamreddy: Cows and buffaloes roaming in various parts of the town, including Ram Mandir, Station Road, Weekly Market Road and other areas, are developing large lumps and ulcers on their skin, causing concern among locals. Animal lovers say the affected animals are unable to graze or walk properly. Based on the symptoms, it is suspected to be Lumpy Skin Disease (LSD). However, official confirmation is awaited. Locals are urging the district administration and veterinary officials to take immediate action to prevent the spread of the virus, provide treatment to affected animals, and implement preventive measures to protect other livestock.

3 Server Down... OTPs Not Received!

Farmers and Service Operators Face Difficulties with Bhu Bharati Services

Telangana: Service operators and Meeseva centre staff are expressing frustration over server issues in the Bhu Bharati portal, launched by the state government. For the past few months, they have been facing problems such as server busy, error 402, failures in slot booking, stamp duty payments, document uploads and citizen login. Even with correct user ID and password, the portal is not logging in, OTPs are not being received, and pages take too long to load, causing delays in work. Due to these issues, farmers and the public are forced to visit offices repeatedly. Many are criticising that despite replacing Dharani with Bhu Bharati, the problems remain unresolved. People are urging the government to immediately resolve the technical issues and ensure uninterrupted services on the portal.
