The Story of Lord Shiva – How Mahadeva Became Neelakantha

To save the universe from the deadly Halahala poison, Lord Shiva drank it and became Neelakantha

Once, the Devas (gods) and Asuras (demons) decided to obtain Amrita, the nectar of immortality. For this, they undertook the churning of the Ksheera Sagara (Ocean of Milk), known as Samudra Manthan.

They used the Mandara Mountain as the churning rod and the serpent Vasuki as the rope. During the churning, many divine objects emerged. However, initially, a terrible and highly poisonous substance called Halahala came out.

The poison was so powerful that it threatened to destroy the entire creation. The Devas were frightened and approached Lord Shiva, seeking his protection.

Out of compassion for all living beings, Lord Shiva drank the poison and held it in his throat. As a result, his throat turned blue, and he came to be known as Neelakantha.
